

an evening with

Thursday, November 9, 2006 at 7:00 pm
Jefferson Center in Roanoke, Virginia
Shaftman Performance Hall

The lecture will be followed by a book signing.

Sarah Susanka

The author of the "Not So Big House" Series and juror of C2C Home Competition

Bestselling author, architect, and cultural visionary, Sarah Susanka is leading a movement that is redefining the American home. Her "build better, not bigger" approach to residential architecture has been embraced by homeowners, architects and builders across the country and her Not So Big philosophy has sparked an international dialogue. As a leading advocate for the re-popularization of residential architecture, Ms. Susanka has improved the quality of home design while countering the elitist image of architects so commonly held by the public. In 2007, Random House will publish The Not So Big Life, where Sarah will adapt the same revolutionary principles to how we experience our lives. Grab a seat as she offers guidelines for easing our chaotic and overcommitted lifestyles, slowing down and eliminating less fulfilling activities to make time for those things that give our lives a personal signature and deep satisfaction. Sarah's books will be available for purchase at the event.

presented by

SmithLewis
ARCHITECTURE

AIA Blue Ridge
A Chapter of
The American Institute of Architects

For ticket information: Phone: 540.345.2550 Fax: 540.343.3744 E-mail: info@jeffcenter.org